

Astronomy Presentation

On Thursday the 23rd of August, 1:00pm, Paul Francis, an ANU physics professor in to talk to students about astronomy. This is a great opportunity to hear from a researcher who is currently researching Lyman-alpha blobs and quasars, connect with a great presenter, and ask questions on astronomy. Paul won the 2016 Australian Award for University Teaching, Award for Teaching Excellence.

Anyone is welcome, the presentation will be in the lecture theatre.

For more information, talk to Elliot Davis in the Science staff room.
